Time to use that list of links!

1. Go to Lojban.org / Learning and find my class material. Tell me if it sucks. Note what I said were errors.
2. Go to Lojban.org / Word Lists and pull up the particles/cmavo grouped by selma'o. selma'o is the name for the capitalized "classes" of words. Now, you can use ctrl-f to find the first of various classes, like COI or UI.
3. Go to Wiktionary / Gismu Etymology and look up "cmene"
4. Go to the Lojban dictionary and find the definition for {.y} (don't search with the period) Then look up the Lojban word for "teacher".
5. Don't go to the Lojbanic translator for now. It can be scary with the amount of info it returns.
6. Go to the Lojban Attitudinals. You're ready for the next question!

Use the Short Answer bit if you have any questions about the links.

So, you remember how we didn't really cover what other attitudinals there are? Well, this is to help you pick out some of the more important ones. Use the link provided to find awesome tables. (Also known as translation tables, but oh, well.)

Match the English statement to its Lojban translation by looking for a relevant attitudinal.(It doesn't have to be at the start of the statement!) Also, practice reading the Lojban statements aloud. (We have only not covered how to say {x}. I'll provide a link for that later in this assignment.)

(Pro tip: to help find attitudinals in random lojban, look for the .VV form, where V is for vowel.)
(Also, due to my amazing skill at making mistakes, be sure to note that I told you surprise wrong -- {.ue} not {.ua})
(Also also, I have no expectation for you to go and learn how these translations work -- many of them use far ahead things that we need not delve into yet. Just try and figure out which is which with what you have.)

1. Eureka! I will go down the halls naked!	A. ta'o du'o mi la ry.ubudydypare. sipna tu'i lo lercu'aca'a .i .u'i
2. That spider got close to me! (Imagine table-standing, "They give me the creeps!", etc.)	B. .uasai .i mi lunbe klama fo lo nerklaji ku
3. Can't let you do that, Starfox!	C. .uinai.o'u.oi.i'i.ui fanmo la .o.uik
4. Well, looks like O-Week is over... (Did anyone else have mixed feelings?)	D. lo .iisai jukni ku jibni mi
5. btw afaik rudd12 is faak lol :D	E. .e'anai doi starfaks
6. And then the weasels latched onto my face!	F. .ue lo mustlei ku jgari lo flira pe mi ku (There's a word ending in {ei}! Though, it's a compound...)

selma'o COI
A Casual Encounter

Fill in the blank with something appropriate in Lojban.
Chuck and Joe are greeting, talking, and parting.
(Don't worry about the "x" still! Next question has useful link!)

djos: ____ tcyk
tcyk: ____ mo djos: .ui tcuk: xamgu .i .ei mi cliva djos: ____

oookay, (said {ukei}, of course)

Practice speaking some Lojban!

First, listen to / watch the attached video, then repeat those words, which were:
tavla, klama, prami, citka, pinxe, sipna, djuno, klaku, cilre, viska, tirna

Second, read the following aloud:
remai .i ko bacru tcidu di'e .i mutce xamgu .i .uisai

Note: Don't feel bad if you have trouble with the {x}! There will be more examples next week.
Time Allowed (seconds):120

Dave and Karen are meeting each other for the first time. Read over the interaction, and look up anything you have trouble interpreting. If you have any questions, etc., put them in the Short Answer bit.

Note: for gismu, I'll give you the gloss words.
cmene: name
xamgu: good/nice penmi: meet

deiv : coi .i ma cmene do keryn: mi'e keryn .i ma cmene do deiv : mi'e deiv
keryn: mi xamgu penmi do deiv : co'o keryn: co'o

translation:
Dave: Hi! What is your name?
Karen: My name is Karen. What is your name?
Dave: My name is Dave.
Karen: It was nice meeting you.
Dave: Goodbye.
Karen: Goodbye.

Here is where I'd normally require you to post your Anki data. Since I don't expect you to have Anki installed and ready to go already, if you /don't/ have data to submit, use this space to provide one statement you'd like to know the Lojban translation for.

Remember, the instructions for Anki are in the syllabus, found via the attached link.
